

TABLE OF CONTENTS

TOLERANCE IN THE NETHERLANDS

STUDIES

Reka BOZZAY, Freedom of Religion in Transylvania in Early Modern Times . . . . .	7
Jan URBANIAK, Freedom, Civil Activism and Critics of the Absolutism: Some Cases of the Dutch Republicanism in Enlightenment . . . . .	19
Lucie SEDLÁČKOVÁ, Czech Exile Writers in the Netherlands: The Position of Jana Beranová and Jan Stavinoha in the Literary Field . . . . .	37
Jan FABRY, The Paradoxal Fight of Esperanto for Tolerance . . . . .	53
Magdalena LIPNICKA, Cultural Specific Elements of Translations into Polish on the Basis of Jip en Janneke by Annie M.G. Schmidt. . . . .	65
Pavlna KNAP-DLOUHÁ & Kateřina KŘÍŽOVÁ, The Importance of Social Interpreting as an Instrument of Tolerance in the Context of Current Refugee and Labour Migration. . . . .	83
Agata KOWALSKA-SZUBERT, You Will Cherish Other People's Language Errors! Tolerance for Language Changes and Spelling Errors . . . . .	95
Kamila TOMAKA, Hun hebben de taal verkwanseld en hun hadden gelijk – on 'Tolerance' with Regard to Different Varieties of the Dutch Language. . . . .	105
Agnieszka FLOR-GÓRECKA, Syntactic Tolerance: Is It Possible to Passivise Intransitive Verbs with Prepositional Objects? . . . . .	119
Katarzyna WIERCIŃSKA, Who is More Tolerant? The Perception of Imperatives in Polish and in Dutch in an Informal Context. . . . .	139
Zuzanna CZERWONKA-WAJDA, The Introduction of the Glides [i] and [w] as an Attempt to Implement the Pronunciation of the Dutch Vowels [e], [y] and [o] by Polish Learners . . . . .	155
Muriel WATERLOT, How Tolerant is Foreign Language Teaching towards Translation? . . . . .	169

